JFK High School, Taylor Michigan

THE CLOSING OF JOHN F KENNEDY HIGH SCHOOL

John F Kennedy High is soon to close its doors permanently. I was curious as to whether Taylor's "John F Kennedy High School was the first in the United States to be so named"? My research revealed that on February 6,

1963 at a School Board meeting, in Taylor Michigan, Mr. Trolley moved to rename the new senior high school the "John Fitzgerald Kennedy Senior High School. Mr. Delp supported the motion. The motion was passed on a 6 yes 1 no vote. I then contacted Sharon Kenney Vespremi (JFK 1969), who was working in Congressman

Dingell's local office and asked her to research the question. The Congressional Research Service provided her information on a John F Kennedy High School in San Antonio, Texas. On September 10, 1962 their Board of Trustees voted on the name of their school, believing it to be the first John F Kennedy High School in the country. Later, I went to Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia, and asked for a list of John F Kennedy High Schools. In that list I found that a school in Cheektowaga,

New York had been named in honor of the President in 1961. On March 7, 2018 I again called the high school and talked with an administrator. She confirmed that they had named the school John F Kennedy in 1961. The school also opened in 1961 and is about to graduate their 57th class.

So, to the best of my knowledge, our JFK was the 3rd in the country to be so named.

IN THE NEW

The Closing of Harry S Truman High School

Harry S Truman High is closing, not the building, but name Truman as a high school. The same building will now house all the high school students in the district under the name Taylor High School.

Truman High School, named after President Harry S Truman in 1971 opened in the Fall of 1973 with 1,697 10th, 11th and 12th graders. The first graduating class of 418 students was June of 1974.

The “Six Million Dollar Complex” was home to 1,600 senior high and 1,300 junior high students. A formal dedication was held April 28, 1974. Congressman William Ford was the principal speaker. William Marshall, President of the Michigan AFL-CIO, presented the school with an oil portrait of President Truman. A letter written by President Truman November 18, 1971 was sent to Superintendent

Simon Kachaterian. It was read at the Dedication. The letter follows:

“I was pleased to receive your letter informing me that the Taylor Board of Education authorized a resolution to name their new Junior and Senior High School complex for me.

I am highly complimented, and I hope that all the students enrolled in this school will make the most of the opportunities for an education extended to them.

I greatly appreciate this honor and the members of the Taylor Board of Education have my sincere thanks and best wishes.”

Out of the Past

We were recently sent a story entitled “Life in Room 126” that was written June 9, 1980. Room 126 was home for Denny Alexander, History Instructor. Mr. Alexander is no longer with us and is missed by many. The well written article is too long for this Newsletter, so I will just take parts and if anyone wants the entire article you can let me know.

Parts of the article

I walked in the first day and took a nonchalant look around the room in which I would be spending my first hour of every school day. I figured it to be my final look, since every student knows what is accomplished in first hour class—catching up on all the sleep you lost the night before. But as I glanced around, I noticed something unusual about this room. Maybe it was the friendly little signs around the room. Or, maybe it was the list of rules sitting in front of me. Rules? Whoever heard of rules in first hour? The rules contained:

- no gum chewing
- no head on the desk (if you did put your head on the desk, you would hear a sharp command to lift up your head). The man doesn’t appreciate a sleepy audience.

The closing paragraph reads- “But, as I sit here now, looking back at all the pain, anguish and fun I went through, I realize my whole first hour I will never forget the little man with the probing eyes and the sly smile.

Again , if you would like the entire story of first hour with Mr. Alexander, let us know.
